

Essays: varieties of work

We are happy to read some essays in another magazine or collection. Others we run with our eyes and do not remember. Thirdly, we become literary monuments. And it is not only about the talent of the author. Much depends on what topic you reveal and who you write to.

There are many kinds of essays. For example, there are philosophical, artistic, historical, spiritual and religious, literary and critical essays. In form they are divided into notes, letters, lyrical miniatures, reviews. By the method of presentation - in descriptive and narrative, analytical and critical, essay illustrations, classifications, and others.

Let us start with the simplest method of presentation.

Essay Description .

In this essay, we describe an object. It can be a flower, a product, a person or an animal, an artist's work or a film - in short, anything. In the description, it's important not just to convey the basic characteristics of the object - its appearance, smell, texture, but to reflect your feelings. There is no room for criticism and analysis in the essay, but subjectivity is still present - in the very features that you have noticed, in the wording, in the emotional coloring.

The subtype may include a description of the process. Somehow it involves narrative: you describe some actions in chronological order, but there is no place for conflict in the text.

Essay story

Action, action and only action! The narrative is a statement of events in chronological order from the first or third person. It may be a short biography, or a story about an important event. The main components of such an essay are the beginning, the culmination and the conclusion. Accordingly, there should be also a conflict.

Essay definition .

Essay definition pursues one goal - to reveal this or that notion. For this purpose, elements of narrative, description, illustrations, analytics can be used.

Essay classification .

The text that you read with a stretch can be called an essay classification. We take a concept, select a principle, create a classification. In this way we consider the topic in depth.

Essay Comparison

In the classification you dissect the concept. In comparison - take another, related concept, draw parallels, look for similarities and differences.

Essay Illustration

It's simple: your goal is to prove any statement. To do this, you select and give examples. It is important that these examples really prove what you are saying.

Essay argumentation .

If in the illustration you give examples, in the essay argumentation - facts that confirm your statement. It is important to build these facts logically. Unlike the illustration, here the author pushes on the rational link, not on emotions.

Causal analysis

Cause → consequence. Your essay can be built on this. You don't just give the facts anymore, you analyze them and build a logical chain.

As you can see, the text can have different structure and different purposes. It is the goals that determine the choice of a genre or method of presentation.
